Tax Residency Self-Certification

Please read these instructions carefully before completing the remainder of this form

The Governments of Bermuda and the Cayman Islands, along with many others around the globe, have agreed to participate in certain intergovernmental initiatives involving the automatic exchange of account information amongst taxation authorities of foreign jurisdictions.

For example, both Bermuda and the Cayman Islands have undertaken to participate in the Common Reporting Standard ("CRS"), a multilateral reporting initiative that requires financial institutions to collect and report certain information about an individual's tax residence and account holdings to local authorities, who will in turn transmit such information to exchange partners in other jurisdictions on an annual basis.

Bermuda and the Cayman Islands are also party to intergovernmental agreements with the United States of America in respect of the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act ("FATCA"). As a result, information regarding certain accounts held by U.S. persons with financial institutions in Bermuda and the Cayman Islands will be reported to the IRS on an annual basis.

Please be advised that we cannot provide tax or legal advice.

If you have any questions about CRS or FATCA, the contents of this Tax Residency Self-Certification Form, or how to define your tax residency, please speak to your tax adviser or domestic tax authority.

Tax residence is determined by the laws of each jurisdiction, and may depend on certain factors in addition to ordinary residence. It should be noted that special circumstances may cause you to be resident for tax purposes in a jurisdiction other than where you ordinarily reside, or to be resident in more than one country at the same time (dual residency).

If you are a U.S. citizen or tax resident under U.S. law, in addition to completing this Tax Residency Self-Certification Form, you will also need to return a completed W-9 form. The W-9 form can be downloaded from the IRS website.

This Tax Residency Self-Certification Form will remain valid unless you have a change in circumstances relating to information included herein (such as a change in your tax residency or status). In that case, you must notify us and provide an updated Tax Residency Self-Certification Form within sixty (60) days of such change in circumstances.
